

The Observer role is a feature available to student athletic advisors to follow specific students in eCampus. They have a limited student view of certain aspects of a course and can track student progress. To obtain the Observer role, an athletic advisor cannot have any active (on going courses) instructor or student enrollments in eCampus.

Observers only have access to specific modules on the My WVU eCampus page after logging in. From the My WVU eCampus page, they have access to the following modules that will populate information for the student for which they are currently observing:

- My Courses
- Report Card
- My Announcements

Observers only have access to specific tools within a course. Once an Observer clicks on a course for a student they are observing, they will have access to view the following course tools:

- Announcements
- Blackboard Help
- Calendar
- Content Areas (only areas that are set to “Show Link” by the instructor)
- My Grades
- Tasks
- Tools Area (if an instructor has provided a link)

What will I see as the instructor of a student who is being observed by an advisor?

Instructors will notice that the Users option under Users and Groups has a column titled Observer. The athletic advisor’s username will show in the Observer column for any student they are observing.
